

The Changing Face of Primary Healthcare

Overview

The next meeting of the Health Claims Forum will take place on Thursday 24th May and will focus on the challenges faced in primary healthcare, how technology is helping patients and practitioners to face some of those challenges, and what this means for our industry.

Our first speaker is Dr Rob Rosa, who until recently worked as a GP before leaving medical practice to concentrate on his role working within the insurance industry. He will be discussing the breadth of the GP's role, the challenges they face and the day-to-day reality of working as a GP in the NHS today. Dr Rosa has a special interest in mental health and the clinical pathways that are likely to be available to mental health patients.

Martin Aspin and Malcolm Windsor of Primary Care Support England will then be discussing the provision of medical records; an area that has been the cause of some difficulty for claims assessors in recent months. They will be talking about recent changes in the way that medical records are held and the types of records that are held by PCSE. They will also cover the processes and authority requirements that Insurers need to understand when applying for records held by PCSE.

As claims assessors, it is important that we understand stress and its impact on claims. It's also important for us as individuals to be able to recognise the signs and symptoms of stress for our own wellbeing. Debbie Kleiner-Gaines, Head of Workplace Happiness at PES Wellbeing will be taking us through an interactive session on how we and employers can prevent stress and how self-help apps and other technology is becoming increasingly available to assist us in this aim.

After lunch, Jeff Manricks from Shift Technology will talk to us about how to combine the analytical powers of Artificial Intelligence (AI) and Machine Learning with specialised industry expertise to overhaul Claims Automation and Fraud Detection in the Health Insurance Industry. The session will challenge us to think about how we can move fraud detection away from traditional 'red flag checklists' to an end-to-end solution with AI present every step of the way, as well as streamlining operations and reducing claim processing time from weeks to minutes.

With ever increasing pressure on the NHS and access to primary healthcare a concern for many, efforts are being made to allow patients to take more ownership of their own health. One way to achieve this is through access to a “virtual GP”. To end the day, Doniert Macfarlane, Chief Medical Officer for First Support Solutions will be talking us through how these services work, how they can be used to compliment a more traditional approach and how Insurers can support and potentially benefit from a new approach.

At the end of the day, the Health Claims Forum invite you to join us for wine or a couple of beers and we hope to see as many of you there as possible.

The cost of the day will be £125 per person.
