How Big Is The Problem?

Overall, the total cost of claim frauds to the industry remained the same YoY at £1.1billion.

Industry Detects £1 bn in fraudulent claims amid crackdown on insurance fraud

25/09/2024

Cracking down on insurance fraud remains a top priority for the industry, the Association of British Insurers (ABI) has said today, as its latest figures reveal £1.1 billion worth of fraudulent claims were detected last year, up 4% on 2022.

Insurers identified 84,400 fraudulent claims in 2023, 11,800 more than the previous year,¹ and the average value was £13,000.²

For the first time, the ABI's latest figures also include details on the type of fraud scammers attempted to commit. Exaggerated loss, the deliberate attempt to increase the cost of a claim beyond its true value, was the most common with 25,700 claims amounting to £407 million.

Motor insurance continues to be the area where insurers see most fraudulent claims occurring, and they detected 45,800 motor scams worth £501 million. This is 8% more than in 2022, and represents 54% of all claims made throughout the year.

Insurers also identified 16% more fraudsters from making fake property insurance claims,³ worth £143 million.

Alongside this, insurers prevented an estimated 583,000 fraudulent insurance applications, a 17% increase from 2022. Application fraud is when important information is purposefully misrepresented or hidden for financial gain.

Examples of Fraud

UK Case – Overseas Claim

Critical Illness Plans

Insurer A – £50,000 (PAID)
Insurer B - £150,000 (Pending)
Insurer C - £100,000 (Pending)
Insurer D - £150,000 (PAID)

CMO Comments:

“Whilst it would have been better to see a fuller report and the ECGs from the time of admission, there is certainly evidence of an MI, with a regional wall motion abnormality on the stress echo and Q waves in III and aVF on the ECG. Thus, the UK evidence is in favour of there having been an MI (though cannot time it)”

- The hospital confirm hospital form not completed correctly (no patient control number referenced)
- The doctors listed (Zahoor & Afstad) are not associated with hospital
- The hospital computer records hold no record of claimant attending the hospital or being treated there
- Have been unable to further contact claimant - appears to have gone to ground

Insurance Fraud Investigators Group

2023-2025: United Against Fraud

IFIG: Who are we?

Established in 1999, IFIG - the Insurance Fraud Investigators Group - is a not-for-profit Specified Anti-Fraud Organisation (SAFO) as defined under the Serious Crime Act 2007. Group membership facilitates intelligence and knowledge sharing for all counter fraud professionals. Our network largely work in, or with, the insurance sector. We also welcome guest members, such as the police, HMRC, regulatory and other public bodies.

We focus on

- Collaboration and intelligence sharing across all sectors, made unique by our diverse and inclusive membership
- Investigation and networking
- Complementing other counter fraud bodies and law enforcement
- Knowledge sharing & Integrity

We provide

- Online and live regional and national events, including presentations from fraud experts, training and networking opportunities.
- An intelligence platform, developed and supported by Verisk, a leading data provider to the insurance industry.
- Specified Anti-Fraud Organisation (SAFO) status which allows us to host intelligence from public bodies, including the police.

What's in it for me and my Organisation?

You're not alone. Fraudsters are not brand loyal and move from scam to scam. But IFIG members don't just share intelligence, they can also develop effective tactics and strategies that may support your organisation.

Keeping informed. IFIG's networking and support can help you keep abreast of the latest trends and emerging risks. In turn, this can help you plan for the future.

Development. IFIG's networking opportunities also help grow your and your team's understanding of the fraud issues that face our industry. This can be supported by accredited counter fraud training, to add greater credibility to your counter fraud approach.

Collaboration - IFIG

In the context of fraud challenges such as the cost-of-living crisis and the threat of AI and chat GPT, it's never been more important for counter fraud professionals to tackle fraudsters and protect genuine customers.

Here at IFIG, we recognise that collaborating and extending intelligence networks is key to this. We also know that fraudsters aren't brand or sector loyal - they target multiple product lines. So, we think beyond the traditional speciality to speciality fraud intelligence sharing. We ask what the travel sector can offer the motor sector, or what health insurers can offer their household counterparts. We focus on networking too; on the value of that all-important face-to-face interaction.

We've filled a gap in the market by creating an intelligence platform that's accessible to all fraud investigators. We integrate industry groups to work together for the same goal. And we've created a joined-up, sector wide counter fraud resource. We know that the more members we attract, the more intelligence can be shared, and the more fraud prevented, across all lines of business.

We have the tools. So, let's use them."

We're listening to our members:

This is how our members' feedback during H1 2023 is shaping our strategy

Networking & events

- We'll carry on delivering IFIG events, together with post-event networking
- There will be three, in person, networking events annually

Intelligence platform

- We'll further develop our Verisk e-alerts system to serve all lines of business
- We'll let members choose if they want to share intelligence with other counter fraud bodies

Accredited training

- We'll partner with recognised practitioners to deliver training for insurance fraud professionals.
- Training will be delivered by accredited trainers

Industry collaboration

- We'll collaborate with other counter fraud bodies and agencies
