

Health Claims Forum

How to get the most from your referral to a Vocational Rehabilitation Practitioner

Alex Freeman RGN, DPSN, CDMP

16th February 2017

Tel: 01428 658965/ 07853 277840

Email: alex@absencemanagementsolutions.co.uk

Reasons to refer

- Medical evidence supports RTW.
- Adjustments and accommodations required to facilitate RTW.
- The claimant indicates that they feel ready to RTW.
- Medical evidence does not meet normal expectations.
- Claimant or employer putting barriers up.
- Recovery supported but issues between employee and employer suggested.

Another perspective

- Adds context to the medical, employee and employer information.
- Explorative interviews, using a BPS approach.
- Able to challenge beliefs regarding RTW potential.
- Brings all parties together.
- Provide realistic recommendations.
- Drive things forward encouraging responsibility and accountability.

How to get more out of your referral

- Consider what do you know, and what do you need to know – where do you think a VRP can add value?
- Set the scene with the employer, and if possible the employee, beforehand.
- Provide relevant evidence with the referral, a summary on the referral form and pertinent supplementary information.

Most Importantly, have a conversation!

Key Points to Consider

To get the most out of a referral think about what it is you want to achieve, a conversation with the VRP ensures this is understood, or can help you to achieve this.

A VRP can add value in situations where RTW support is not explicit, but your expertise tells you that this is where the situation should be heading.

Barriers do not always mean that either the Employer or the Employee are not motivated for RTW, they may just not understand the potential or how to progress things.

RTW support should be bespoke and is influenced by many factors. Rarely are two cases ever the same.

Any Questions?

